His Nomination to Be Unanimous at Saratoga.

The Real Fight Will Be for Lieutenant-Governor.

Col. Cruger Said to Have the Best Chance.

PEPECIAL TO THE EVENING WOBLD. CONVENTION HALL, SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug.

28.—Saratoga was crowded with Republican politicians this morning. All the rooms in the hotels not occupied by regular summer boarders were taken by the more or less jubilant members of the Warner Miller howlers. Many of the delegates who arrived this morning did not attempt to secure rooms. They have no use for them. The streets are wide and pleasant enough for them, and they expect that the work of the convention will be finished to-night.

They seem to be short of money, and those of them who thought they needed liquid refreshments patronized the places where beer is sold on draught.

All the storekeepers, hotel men, saloon keepers, hackmen, hall-boys, bootblacks and sporting men groan because a Democratic convention is not in progress, and say that if convention is not in progress, and say that if the Tammany and County Democracy people were here there would be plenty of money in circulation.

A visiting Warner Miller Club solemnly paraded through Broadway this morning and became mixed up with a funeral procession.
When the Democrats saw the hearse they made such remarks as: "What's that; that's what they will do with Warner Miller in November," and "That's what the Republicans will need on election day."

HEADQUARTERS NOT CROWDED.

HEADQUARTERS NOT CROWDED.

The headquarters of the State Committee in Congress Hall was not overcrowded, but the corridors and the piazzas of the hotel were packed with gentlemen from all parts of this State, who exchange nods and winks and who smoked cheap clgars.

Mayor C. A. Parsons, who is serving his seventh term as Mayor of Rochester, and who is a candidate for Lieutenant-Governov, seemed somewhat disturbed over the candidacy of Gol. S. V. E. Gruger, of New York.

said that he could lick any man from New York.

Col. Edward A. McAlpin, of Sing Sing, was calm and peaceful, and ex-Congressman Edward E. Einstein, of New York, was very gloomy. They were both candidates last night. They scarcely knew what they were this morning.

Ex.Senator Edmund L. Pitts, of Orleans, had a sneaking suspicion that he might crawl in and capture the alleged prize.

THE REAL FIGHT. The fight is over the Lieutenant-Governor-ship only, and judging by the talk of Jakey Hess, Barney Biglin, Sol Smith, Jake Jaco-bus, Johnny O'Brien and Bob McCord, of New York, the fight was already ended this New York, the fight was already ended this morning, and Col. Cruger is to be nominated; While the politicians in Congresz Hall, the Grand Union, the United States Hotel and elsewhere were tearing their hair over the Lieutenant-Governorship, ex-United States Senator Warner Miller was holding a levee in the United States Hotel, and Senators Frank Hiscock and William M. Evarts and ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt were fanning him.

Ex-Senator Miller will, of course, be nominated unanimously by acclamation. It was understood by those who talked to Mr. Miller that he was opposed to the nomination of

The Casino is beautifully decorated for the convention, and is plastered all over with portraits of Harrison and Morton. A little log cabin rests on the Chairman's desk.

BEGINNING TO ASSEMBLE.

BEGINNING TO ASSEMBLE.

Shortly before noon the delegates began to wander into the building. They had alowly filed by the Hathorn and Hamilton springs, but did not stop to quench their thirst.

Among the distinguished Democrats who secured front seats in the gallery were ex-Sachem Edward Kearney, ex-Register John Reilly, ex-President of the Board of Aldermen Adolph L. Sanger, John J. Scannell, Police Justices Henry Murray and Daniel O'Reilly and Pat Sheedy, of New York.

The platform was beautiful with flowers, and the smiling faces of Senators Evarts and Christopher C. Shayne, the President of the American Fur-Dealers' Association. There was a necessity for overcoats in the building, and the hat tickets for them rattled in the trousers pockets of some of the gentlemen from New York.

The majority of the delegates danced in the building while a band of musicians in a corner played lively airs.

CALLED TO ORDER.

At noon Acting Chairman of the State Committee Gen. John N. Knapp called the convention to order, and introduced the Rev. S. V. Leech, ex-Chaplain of the Senate, who delivered the prayer. Gen. Knapp then presented Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, of Brooklyn, as the Temporary Chairman.

Among those who nodded their approval were Speaker Fremont Cole, Miles O'Brien, the boss of Albany; Gen. N. M. Curtis, James S. T. Stranshan, Bald Eagle Husted, William H. Townley, Senator Cornelius Van Cott, Clarence W. Meade and Editor Elliott F. Shepard. CALLED TO ORDER.

The band of musicians were then called upon to do a little work, and they rattled through the national airs.

Editor Elliott F. Shepard, of New York, and D. E. Ainsworth, of Oswego, who had escorted Gen. Tracy to the Chairman's desk, felt very proud when the Temporary Chairman began his address.

Gen, Tracy read his address from a large roll of manuscript. It was the usual set speech, giving a history of the war and showing that the Republican party saved the nation.

The Great Kilrain Not Uproarloasly Welcomed at the " Hub."

INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. Boston, Aug. 28.-Although the advent of the fistic Jake Kilrain had been heralded in the "Hub" there was very little attempt at any kind of a display in appreciation of the gallant battle the Bradford oarsman gave Jem Smith, the English champion, There was no crowd of hangers-on awaiting his arrival.

The party that stepped off the 8.30 boat train in the Old Colony Depot were Jake, his wife, child, little Johnny Murphy and Mr. Moore, of New Bedford. They lost very little time in getting comfortably stored away in one of the depot carriages and started for the Lowell Depot on Causeway street, where a train was taken for Somerville. Jake will spend a few days with his wife's parents at the latter place.

AND SOME WHO DIDN'T.

Rich Diamonds Bestowed by a Rich Man on a Circle of Richly Appreciative Friends-Capt. Pike Got a Share Beeause He Was a Friend of Joe Coburn-The Depor Is New Resting Out.

Since 8 o'clock this morning nothing has been talked of in the corridors of the Hoffman, Fifth Avenue and the Gilsey but the reperceity of Millionaire George Law to his Saratoga friends.

The despatches from the Spa in the morning papers were eagerly read by Mr. Law's many friends, and in the "White Elephant" verybody seemed to be wondering what the orse railroad magnate would do next,

An Evenino World reporter called at 259 Fifth avenue, where Mr. Law's sister resides, and was met at the door by a female servant, who remarked very solemnly that Mr. Law wasn't there and that it was herself and his poor sister who would like to know where he was. He went away two weeks ago and not a word had anybody at the house heard of him since then. The lips of the affectionate girl quivered and in the corner of her left eve glistened a tear drop. She could give no information as to Mr. Law's whereabouts, and no one in the house seemed to know when he would the house seemed to know when he would return.

The reporter then proceeded to the office of the Ninth Avenue Surface Railway, where the champion generous man is usually to be found, but, strangely enough, none of the clerks appeared to know anything about Mr. Law or his movements. The stablemen and drivers had read the story of their employer's liberality, and they talked very guardedly about the matter.

"In my mind," said a big, raw-boned Irishman who gets $2 for driving a bobtal car anywhere from ten to twelve hours out of the twenty-four. "Mr. Law'd be a — sight better off if he'd increase the pay of his men, so that they might live in decency, instead of throwing away his money after that style."

And this driver, in his decidedly expressive speech, seemed to voice the sentiments of all of the employees.

Jack Parker, a well-known bookmaker who is acquainted with every sporting man in the East, was immensely tickled when he read of Law's cavortings, and what pleased him most was the idea of "Cap" McCue won't have that jewelry three days."

A number of other knights of the chalk and

"Why," said he, "McCue won't have that jewelry three days."
A number of other knights of the chalk and blackboard expressed great surprise at Law's generosity, and every one of them is anxious to see the lucky sports when they get back from Saratoga.

The reporter saw Joe Coburn and Capt. Pike, two of the recipients of Mr. Law's bounty, this atternoon. The latter was the manager of the Texan cowbov pianist.

On Joe's finger glittered a superb solitaire, and on that of Capt. Pike was an emerald surrounded with diamonds while in the Captrin's scarf was a crescent of diamonds and sapphires. These jewels were all gifts from Law at Saratoga.

sapphires. These jewels were all gifts from Law at Saratoga.

Mr. Coburn said to the reporter: "I've known George Law for thirty years and been an intimate friend of his, and there's nothing I'd ask from him that he wouldn't give me. The men were friends of his, except Pike and Murphy, and he knew they were friends of mine. George was glad I'd stopped drinking. He said I'd never want for a dollar so long as I kept that up. I've stopped it for good, and am a Prohibitionist.

"Law was perfectly sober at the time he made the presents. He doesn't show the effects of liquor, anyhow, very much.

"I told him to go over to Cambridge, his old family place, when he asked me what to do. I told him to go over there and get freshened up—that I had to go to New York to look after my exhibition with Tom McCoy at the Oriental Theatre, but that I would see him down there in a few days. So I got him off with his man all right."

days. So I got him off with his man all right."

Capt. Pike wears his hair in something of Buffalo Bill's fashion. He is a small man with dark complexion. He said to the reporter: "There was some exaggeration in the morning accounts. Law didn't give me any ten-thousand-dollar check. I don't believe he carries his check-book around with him. He was perfectly sober when he made the presents to us. There were four of us sitting in the big barroom of the Grand Union. Joe Coburn was there, Halleck, Sanders and myself. This was at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

"Nobody asked George Law for anything. They speak as if we bled him. It was nothing of the kind. George Law is, I think, the most generous man in the world. He never regrets what he gives. We were sitting there together sociably when Jacob Dreicer, the jeweller, who has a store in the hotel, came in and going up to Mr. Law said: 'I'd like to sell you some diamonds, Mr. Law.'

"Mr. Law said to him: 'Bring me in $8,000 worth of diamonds. I want to make some presents to my friends make some presents to my friends here as souvenirs. The jeweller brought in a number of boxes containing rings and pins, and George Law asked us to select from them any one that took our fancy. He wished to present them asked us to select from them any one that took our fancy. He wished to present them to use.

"I never met Mr. Law before this Saturday, but he knew I was a friend of Mr. Coburn's. He said to me, when he asked me to select something, 'I don't know much about you. Capt. Pike, but you are Mr. Coburn's friend, and I want you to wear this out on the frontier there and sometimes think of George Law.

"Sheedy, Murphy, Duffy and Jerr yDunn came in after the rings had been brought in and he gave them each something, too. He knew all of them. Mr. Coburn went to his room with him afterwards and he went to sleep, and I suppose his alumbers were sweet and peaceful."

Jo Coburn's ring is valued at $750. Capt. Pike's ring is worth $600 and his pin $150. Dan Murphy got a solitaire ring worth $500; Jerry Dunn took a ring with rubies and diamonds worth $650; Johnny Saunders chose a $450 ring, with rubies, sapphires and diamonds; John Halleck got one of equal value, with turquoise and diamonds; William Tracy chose a $500 diamond ring, and Capt. McCue, besides; his two rings, got $500 in cash.

It is denied by Col. Ochiltree's friends that he bled Mr. Law. They say that he is an old friend of his, and was trying to keep Mr. Law from being taken advantage of.

CONDUCTORS NEXT.

The Twenty-third Street Railway Cars Must Have Them.

Mayor Hewitt Has Signed the Ordinance That Says So.

Arrest for Manslaughter Also In Store for the Road's Directors.

Mayor Hewitt has signed the ordinance which abolishes the bobtail car on Twentythird street and requires the employment of conductors by the Twenty-third Street Railway Company.

Capt. Twomey, Clerk of the Board of Aldermen, received and filed this approved bit of legislation to-day.

The Mayor also sent to the Board of Aldermen, for a reading at its meeting at 1 P. M., a message suggesting additional legislation regarding the bobtail-car nuisance. In his message Mayor Hewitt says that fifty new cars will be required to equip the road, and that he thinks that that number can be provided not before Dec. 1.

He says that he is satisfied that the Twenty-third Street Railway Company is now acting in good faith, Notwithstanding its unwillingness in the past to meet the just demands of public opinion, the Mayor believes it now desirous to provide cars of a safe and commodious character.

He recommends that the time limited for the ordinance to take effect be extended till bec. 1.

the ordinance to take effect be extended till Dec. 1.

Arguing for this extension of time the Mayor says:

Insamuch] as this subject has attracted wide attention and the power of the Common Council to pass the ordinance has been questioned, I submitted the question of legality to the Counsel for the Corporation, whose opinion I herewith submit, not only in order that the records may be made complete and the power of the Common Council to pass the ordinance in question be made clear, but to call attention to the fact that the validity of the ordinance rests upon its being reasonable in character; and hence the evident propriety of extending the time for the substitution of cars with conductors long enough to enable the company to procure the necessary venticles. If an extension of ninety days he thus given it seems to me clear that the courts would hold that the ordinance was entirely reasonable in its demands, and that the company could not allege the want of adequate time as a justification for further delay.

In addition to this predicament, members company could not allege the want of adequate time as a justification for further delay.

In addition to this predicament, members of the directory of the Twenty-third Street (Jigger) Railway Company are now liable to be arrested at any moment for another cause.

They will be apprehended on warrants is med by Coroner Messemer charging them with manslaughter in causing the death of Mrs. Sophia Levy, who was run over and killed near Eighth avenue, July 10, by one of their bobtail cars.

Although it is several days since Supreme Court Justice Patterson dissolved the temporary injunction which prevented the Coroner from performing his duty by filing the result of his inquisition, he has refrained from arraigning the bobtail railway magnates until he should be fully informed as to his powers in the premises.

So many legal stumbling blocks had been interposed by the corporation's lawyers to prevent the performance of their duty by the Coroner and his jury that Coroner Messemer, although the Court has determined that his position throughout the inquest has been legal and proper, determined to adopt the motto of Davy Crockett: "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

The jury in the Levy inquest returned a right, then go shead."

The jury in the Levy inquest returned a verdict holding the directors of the Twenty-verdict holding the directors of the I wenty-third Street Railway responsible for the poor woman's death, but did not, in terms, de-clare them guilty of manslaughter, although the isliway system which they maintain was characterized as a nuisance which should be abolished.

Not desiring to fight any more dilatory vertices in the courts or to listen to the un-motions in the courts, or to listen to the un-called for vituperative speeches of Col. Den-ison, the Coroner sought the nevice of Cor-poration Counsel Beckman as to his right to arrest the directors of the company under arrest the directors of the company under the finding of the jury.

That official has given his opinion main-taining the Coroner's right, and these officials will undoubtedly be arraigned, charged with mans/aughter, and put under bonds for trial.

Alderman Benjamin at to-day's meeting in-troduced a resolution requiring the employ-ment of conductors on the bobtail cars of the Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery Railway Company, which are run on Canal street and Company, which are run on Canal street and Avenue D. It was referred to the Railroad Committee, on motion of Alderman Joseph Murray.

LIGHTING THE PARK.

The Gas Commission Meets To-Day to Give Out the Stuyvesant Park Contract.

With the honorable gentlemen of the Gas Commission doing their duty by the people this afternoon, the fruits of a victory won by THE EVENING WORLD will be realized by Saturday of this week. Stuyvesant Square will then be lighted by electricity, and the poor people of the Sixteenth Assembly District will be able to enjoy a rest on the benches of the park for a few a rest on the benches of the park for a few hours after sunset.

Three of the electric-lighting companies of the city are able to reach the park, and each of the three has notified the Secretary of the commission that it will light the square in a certain number of days.

The companies are the United States Illuminating Company, the Brush Electric Light Company and the East River Company. One agrees to light the park op short notice, another on a notice of three or four days, and the third agrees to light it so that the gates may be opened, agreeable to the resolution of the Park Commission, in two days.

Thus a long-delayed act of justice to the people is to be performed and its performance is now but a matter of hours.

How the Message Affects the English [SPECIAL CABLE TO PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.] LONDON, Aug. 28 .- In the lull of the Paramentary recess President Cleveland's retaliation message continues to absorb public attention and is the main topic of the press. As to the effect on Canada of the retaliation policy, sounder views prevail now than on the first receipt of the news. It is getting to be understood that Canada is far less at the mercy of the United States at the present day than she was some years ago, and is better able to hold her own than English journalists realized when first commenting on the news.
